JOHN MITCHELL, JR., AT BETHEL

The Doughty Editor of The Richmond Planet Discourses Eloquently Upon Judge Lynch and His Victims, Before an Overflowing and Appreciative Audience—Coming Attractions.

John Mitchell, Jr., Esq., Editor of the "Richmond Planet," held forth last Tuesday before the famous Bethel Literary Society at Lincoln Memorial Temple in a masterly and eloquent address on "Judge Lynch and His Victims." It was manifest from the very beginning of his remarks that Mr. Mitchell had the earnest and sympathetic attention of an audience, which more than filled the church, not only because the subject was of such moment, but because they knew that the speaker had come from the hot-bed of oppression and prejudice, and yet had stood it for years in fearless defiance of the right. His remarks were rich in illustrating and drawing from a varied experience. Statistics were furnished as to material and intellectual progress of the Negro in the South, the same being considered the real cause of race animosity. Personal bravery on the part of Negroes, wronged or attacked, and race unity were urged as being essential to respect and success.

A bright and entertaining discussion was participated in by Messrs. Lewis H. Douglass, Jno. W. Cromwell, L. M. Hershaw, R. S. Smith, and M. J. Gordon. Mrs. Julia Wormley McAdoo recited selections from Eugene Field, in such a brilliant manner as to receive vociferous applause.

Mr. Wm. H. Joiner, 1st Vice Pres., presided in the absence of Mr. F. L. Cardozo, Jr., President, who is detained at home because of illness in his family. Next week Prof. D. J. Sanders, President Biddle University, Charlotte, N. C., will address the Society, subject, "The New South." Music by the Bessan Choir; "Brutus and Cassius," Messrs. Guy and Tucker. Discussion is invited. Admission is free. No one who wishes to enjoy an interesting and instructive evening will miss these meetings at Lincoln Memorial Temple.

Live Chicagoans Here

Messrs. Henry F. Daniels andillard Ballard, two of Chicago's leading citizens ran into the city last Monday and spent the day glancing over the capital and meeting their friends. They accompanied the new Postmaster General to the city and were presented by him to the President. Mr. Daniels is the confidential secretary to the President of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad and Mr. Ballard has long been prominently connected with the same railway system. These gentlemen during their brief stay met a number of prominent Washingtonians and added several names to their long list of friends.

The Power of Cartoons.

Cartoons in journalism are far more powerful than many of our journalists seem to think. We wish the Negro press of the country could form a cartoon syndicate and thus be easily able for all Negro papers to furnish an apt cartoon once or twice a month—or once a week—on live questions. These cartoons would serve as eye opener not only to the race, but they would attract the reading public in spite of prejudice and set the whole American people to thinking more deeply than Pack or Judge or Truth.—The Baptist Vanguard.

AUTUMN.

Alra-gittin' cool an' coolah,
Frost a-commin' in de night,
Hicko' nuts an' wa'nuts fallin'
John B. Johnson, cut a right
Turkey struttin' in de ban' yard
'Nary step so proud as his,
Keep on struttin' Mistah Turkey,
Yo' do' know whut time it is.
